

QA Lead

Would you like to take part in shaping the future of Mobile payment? Do you appreciate mixing test management and hands-on testing including both internal and external customer integration and customization projects? Then Crunchfish is the company you are looking for. We are currently growing our team and searching for a QA Lead.

About you

You have at least a Bachelor's degree in Computer Science or similar. Through your experience, you have a background in programming and have worked with test scripts, automated tests and test management in software development for some years. To be successful you need an open mindset with focus on collaboration and be quick to adapt to new circumstances. As a person, you are a positive team player that want to contribute to a work environment that is built on passion, openness and expertise.

We would like you to have

- Experience in planning, monitoring and control of testing activities
- Experience in leading a team throughout the development process
- Experience in Python creating test scripts from scratch

- Experience of multiple technology stacks and architectures
- Experience in test automation
- Experience in mobile app- and SDK testing
- Analytical and communication skills
- 5+ years of work experience in relevant testing area
- Experience from testing related to security apps
- Creative, passionate and have a flexible mindset

Extras you might have

- Experience from working with payment solutions
- Security testing (pentesting, ethical hacking, etc)
- Mobile app testing using cloud hosted services

What's in it for you?

Working with Crunchfish is likely a great step in your career as you will be working hands-on in complex and fast-moving projects together with sharp brains and access to market-proven software and tools. Our sweet spot is in securing connections and payments between mobiles and as part of our team at Crunchfish, you will get to work hands-on with a variety of companies and industries worldwide with an initial focus in Sweden and India.

Welcome to Crunchfish

Crunchfish is a deep tech company developing a Digital Cash platform for Banks, Payment Services and CBDC implementations and Gesture Interaction technology for AR/VR, automotive and digital interfaces. Crunchfish is listed on Nasdaq First North Growth Market since 2016, with headquarters in Malmö, Sweden and with representation in India.

Ready for the new challenge?

The search- and selection process is ongoing so please submit your application by submitting your CV and your application to hiring R&D Director rutger.petersson@crunchfish.com as soon as possible.